THE GLORY OF RED CROSS

THINK OF THE HUMANITY OF TWENTY MILLION MEMBERS.

Glimpses of the Wonderful Work and Message of the Red Cross in the War.

On Christmas the announcement was made that the American Red Cross had more than thirteen million new members and with the old membership the Red Cross had nineteen million Americans back of it. When the hour of the new year strikes the membership will be twenty million. Think of it. One fifth of the population of this country making a demonstration of their humanity, and thereby stamping with their disapproval the inhumanity of the German. Henry P. Davidson, chairman of the American Red Cross, made a great appeal a few days ago in the New York Hippodrome, among other things he said:

When $100,000,000 was raised for the Red Cross by voluntary contributions in this country it thrilled the Allies. They were amazed. Nothing of the kind had been known in the world before. They were delighted. When that news reached Germany through the transformer it read something like this: "It is reported that some fund, said to be $100,000,000, has been contributed to the Red Cross."

The Germans visualized some six or eight men at a table chipping in the hundred million dollars as their personal contribution. Now we want to send a Christmas message to the Kaiser to the effect that there are 20,000,000 men and women sitting around that table. I want that number to be members of the Red Cross, and when they accept that membership we want them to accept a sense of responsibility in connection with it, and that responsibility is this: That they shall be loyal members of the Red Cross—and that loyalty means many things.

We have an organization which is perfectly enormous. Six months ago we started with 200,000 members; today we have 600,000 members! We started with 200 chapters; to-day, including branches and auxiliaries, we have 10,000 chapters! We have 10,000 women working for us in this country—all at the same salary. It is a voluntary organization, and we are getting on wonderfully.

But we are asked, Why does not the Government do our work? This is a very natural question, and frequently asked. There are two answers. The first is that this is a work of emergency. No one can tell when or whence the call will come.

The second is that membership

That Frenchman comes out of that trench, and he is met by your Red Cross representative and he is taken to a structure you have arranged; his clothes are taken from him and sterilized and mended. A bath and a haircut are given to him, and a shave if he needs it; if he has whiskers and wants them trimmed, they are trimmed. He gets three hours or three days' rest. Then he is taken to the place where his home was, and there he finds a structure temporary in character which you have built for him, and within that structure he finds his mother or his wife or children, whom you have found for him. He finds them provided with food, with clothing, and with all. He spends his holiday, and then goes back to the trench. What effect do you suppose that has had on that French soldier? It has had the same effect upon that French soldier that it has had on you. Frenchmen are not of exactly the same kind of character as we are. They are just as susceptible to encouragement or to discouragement as we are. Yet the Frenchman is a good soldier. That German American, a quite crazy fellow, was the first to live out the last days of his life, but the last days of his life, to take care of the men in his family, they have found to do the best possible for them. I now have something to live for, a connection to fight for, and I will go as long as I live."

When that man takes his place there, have you ever thought that he takes the place of one of our boys? If there is any break in that line, there is just one thing to stop it with, and that is Pershing's army, prepared or unprepared. And so I submit that that is the way in which your Red Cross is directly saving the lives of your American boys.

We believe also that we are directly contributing to the shortening of this war.

Let us look forward a few months.

I don't know how many.

I can see that circle gathered in the parlor or in the shop, and there will be one there with one eye or no eyes, one there with one arm or no arms, one there with one leg or no legs, and they will be talking about one or two who are not there. Now I ask you what part in that conversation is the man or woman going to take who has not done everything in his or her power all the time for those boys while they were in hell for you and me. I will tell you what part they are going to take. They are going to take no part. They are going to be strangers in their own land. The time has come when the man or woman is going to be measured not by money, not by name, not by family, but by service.

Motor Truck Train.

The first United States motor truck train which left Detroit, Mich., on December 15 passed through Gettysburg on Thursday, Dec. 27. Capt. Bennet Bronson of the Reserve Corps was in charge and he had a corps of 76 men from the 308th regiment. There were thirty cars in the train and among other signs carried was "Packards for Pershing." Senator C. Wm. Beales met the train at Cashtown and accompanied it to Lititzestown.

The Corps was entertained by the Gettysburg Red Cross with a luncheon. They were met in Square and marched to the St. James dining hall and there ham and cheese sandwiches, hot coffee, apples, ice cream were served the boys. After the happy bunch had finished eating they got around the piano and sang. Then gave three cheers for the Gettysburg Red Cross and three cheers for Billy Beales. When they reached the Square Mr. Funkhouser had a treat of cigars for them.

The trucks were lined up along Baltimore and Chambersburg streets and were loaded with army supplies. There was a kitchen truck and two oil trucks in the train and at the end a Red Cross ambulance truck. They declared the Lincoln Way in Pennsylvania the best road they had traveled over and that other trains could be expected through soon, the outlook being for thousands of cars to be sent to tide-water overland. Leaving here they were scheduled to arrive at Westminster for dinner.

New Names Added to the "Fund."

During the rush of Christmas Week and the many things that occupy one's thoughts and time at this season, it is very gratifying to note that the "Miss Kate Wolf Fund" was not forgotten and contributions from the following people are acknowledged with deep appreciation: Mr. Harrison Ball, Mahanay City; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Compton, Gettysburg; Miss Annie W. Horner, Gettysburg; Miss E. M. McClean, Gettysburg; John E. Rausenberger, Gettysburg; Miss Cora Topper, Gettysburg; F. R. McLEAN, In charge of Fun."

John Hewitt in France.

A cablegram was received in town on Christmas Day from John Hewitt stating that he had arrived safely in France. Mr. Hewitt accompanied a party of staff officers who have gone to France on an inspection tour of the American training camps there, after which they will return to this country. Mr. Hewitt is a sergeant major connected with one of the regimental headquarters at Camp

Meade and was assigned to this special duty on account of his ability as stenographer.

"OVER THE TOP AND AT 'EM" PERSONAL POINTS OF VIEW

THE THRILLING RALLY CRY OF BRIGHT AMERICAN BLOOD.

German War Party in a Million Years Could Never Repay the Suffering Caused.

Social and Other Individual Happenings and Other Local Items of Interest.

An eye witness at the front tells of the refugees lately driven out of Belgium by the Germans into France and sent into the western and southern portions of France to be cared for. The testimony of this witness is "We had two trains of five hundred each, old men and women, young women with children, every child under three of a German father, many of the women on the ragged edge of insanity because of having these German children, some married with other children, some not married, no girl over sixteen that I saw, a year, as not pregnant, was allowed to leave—no amateur man or boy over sixteen. All these people have been driven off into the mountains to take care of the children in safety, their tales were pretty to hear. A hungry, dirty, lot of humanity, everything they possess in a little bundle, many who had been well to do before the war, not one knew a thing about their men folks, since they were mobilized in 1914. Women with little babies not knowing if their husbands are alive or dead. The French men are very philosophical on the subject. At first they raged terribly about what they would do if they found a boche child; now they say, my poor wife, she is the one who had to suffer all the degradation, I don't know what I'll do when I see the brat, but I'll be good to her. It is not her fault. The dirty boche, if I could only run him through the heart."

An American soldier saw these refugees and was told what they were talking about and why some of the women were quietly crying. He came away from the crowd exclaiming, "Oh my God, why were we not here two years ago? Many of these refugees have seen no butter, eggs, meat, milk, or potatoes in two years." The judgment of the witness was expressed in these words, that "The German war party could never repay the suffering they have caused among the old and helpless if they lived a million years."

The same Kaiser who stuck his fist under the nose of Ambassador Gerard and said, "America would have to answer to him," sent out a Xmas greeting in which he declared: "If the enemy does not want peace, then we must bring peace to the world by battering in with iron fist and shining sword the doors of those who will not have peace."

There can be no other answer in 1918 for bright American blood than the rallying cry of the boys now in the trenches. "Over the top and in the trenches. Over the top and give 'em hell!"

Red Cross Drive in County.

The Red Cross membership in Adams county at the end of the drive and when all returns are in is expected to be over 4000. To date returns would show as follows:

Membership Sept. 1 ..... 2499
Membership Sept. 1 to Dec. 1 ..... 121
Membership in drive reported ..... 1140

Final reports from the branches have not been received and the number reported covered last week. The drive has been going on this week and there seems to be no doubt the total will be over 4000. The quota of the county of 1 out of every 7 should have given 500. The membership in Gettysburg is over 1100 giving the town a record of 1 out of every 4 of inhabitants.

The Red Cross of this place sent away 500 Christmas presents and Mr. H. T. Weaver, chairman, has received two letters from the Marines, one from League Island and the other from Fort Mifflin, containing expressions of joy and thankfulness, showing how they appreciated being remembered.

Dr. Birckhead, of Baltimore, will come to Gettysburg to deliver a lecture on the Red Cross and its work some time next month, either January 8th or 10th. Announcement will be made later of time and place.

Lime Quarries Sold.

According to report the Bethlehem Steel Company has closed a contract for the purchase of the Bittinger farm, which is located along the Carlisle turnpike in Oxford township, about two miles from Hanover, for $15,000. It is the intention of the Bethlehem Company to operate the quarries on this property on a large scale to procure rock to be used in paving purposes. The present apparatus, which is operated by use of steam, will be replaced, it is understood, by machines operated by electricity.

Dr. Edgar Miller Writes from Front

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, First Lieutenant in the U. S. Medical Corps and serving in France with the British Expeditionary Force, writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Miley Miller, of Baltimore street, in early part of December, and among other interesting facts states:

Weather has been quite cold here for the past few days, ground frozen and ice on streams. Children were skating on ponds. To-day weather moderated and ice thawed and roads became muddy. People are still working in ground about here, the peasant farmers. See plenty of oxen and milk cows used in cultivation of land. They go so slow in plows one has to look to see if they are really moving.

Was to medical lecture by a high official of the English Medical Corps.

DRY GOODS DEPARTMENT STORE

MR. WANAMAKER says—"Of all times this is the time to be cheerful and endeavor to cheer others--brighten the corner wherever you are. Let us join the cheer up family."

There never was a time when there was less need to save money as it is plentier than anything else. There never was a time when so many people had money to spend--so let us circulate, there will be plenty more [when what you have is gone]. The business side of war will take care of that.

Let your Christmas bounty be equal to your station in life. Let us economize in the things necessary to win the war--but not not in our cloths, our house comforts or the things of Christmas that give joy.

Our store was never better stocked with the things of Christmas.

Beautiful Bust and Shoulders

are possible if you will wear a scientifically constructed Bien Jolie Brassiere.

The dragging weight of an uncorrected bust as stretches the supporting muscles that the contour of the figure is spoiled.

Bien Jolie

put the bust back where it belongs, prevent the fall bust from having the appearance of a balloon, eliminate the danger of stretching muscles and confine the bust of the shoulder giving a graceful line to the entire upper body.

They are the daintiest and most serviceable garments imaginable in all materials and styles: Crew Neck, Hook Front, Surprise, Bandee, etc. Boned with "Walohn," the柔軟 boning—permitting washing without removal.

Have your dealer show you Bien Jolie Brassieres if not stock, we will gladly send him, prepaid, samples to show you.

BENJAMIN & JOHNS, 51 Warren Street, Newark, N. J.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS.

As the year 1918 approaches we are soon weary of it.

We are living in the last days of a world that is to be destroyed. The last days of the world are not to be measured by the price of liberty, quantity of humanity, or the size of the world, but by the extent of the destruction that the men of a certain era have caused.

America is beginning again for a great world. Her best strength for such an event was in the Civil War, and slaves and could never govern the people. The South American War was for a moral ideal, to free a neighbor. Now America is her shoulder to the task and the goal in this is to free the world, to end autocracy, to put a finish to the divine right of kings, to carry liberty, equality and fraternity to the ends of the earth, and make that world safe for democracy.

It is thrilling and wonderful to live in such a great age dedicated to such ideals. Go forward in 1918 hopefully that in this new year autocracy will meet its Waterloo, its Gettysburg, and though it may not end in this year, 1918 will see the beginning of the end. The insolence of autocratic power that has swept forward to the accompaniment of the ravishing of women, the murder of innocent women and babes, the sacking of towns and villages, the plundering of countries is doomed. The American believed barbaric war atrocities belonged to a faraway age, a less cultured age. The American gave in its civil war a demonstration of war between civilized armies. The German autocracy has shown itself incapable of entertaining such ideas; it is barbaric in war ideas and has shown its unfitness to survive.

The fall of German autocracy is absolutely certain. It is traveling toward a destiny to be crushed. America will be on hand to help to free the world and make it safe for the people. In 1918 America will put upon the seas the greatest tests ever known. Our men will go far more thoroughly trained and equipped than any troops who have bucked the German monster. We will have legions in the air, back of the big guns, manning the machine guns, and in every arm of service. We will go forward in the name of liberty, equality, fraternity and democracy.

In this forward movement of 1918 the point of view of each individual in this country is whether you are going to have a place in the wonderful achievements of your age. Are you doing your bit to your limit, either in the ranks, or feeding the tally world or in pushing the American spirit over the top to its destiny? To do your bit it is necessary not to do one thing but your limit, sacrifice, feed, buy liberty bonds, support the Red Cross and its war fund, the Y. M. C. A. and other agencies, save through bonds to the Government by brief stamps, and in many other ways. It is no trouble to find a way for you to do your bit, whether you want to be doing your bit abreast of the age.

for unmarried persons and $4,000 for married persons or the head of a family. Any one with an income of $3,000 or over, whether married or unmarried, was required to file a return. Under the new law, every unmarried person with an income of $1,000 or over, or married person with an income of $2,000 or over, must file a return. If an unmarried person has an income of over $3,000, or a married person has an income of over $4,000, there will be two taxes to be calculated exclusive of the excess profits tax, because the new law is merely additional to the old, and not a substitute for it, and the old law is still in force, though amended.

Here is an example, the first being the case of a married man with an income of $2,500 which he derives as salary and against which we will assume no deduction. The second allowed to a single man is $1,000, which will be 2 per cent, or $20, which will be $10.

The interest is married people or heads of families, is the fact that in such a calculation they are compelled to pay an additional amount of $20 for each dependent under 18 years of age, or for a dependent child who is incapable of self-care, because mentally or physically defective, but in order that a person may classify himself or herself as the head of the family it is necessary for such person to support one or more individuals who are closely connected by blood relations, inheritance, adoption, or who are roughly so along, could claim the "aid" of the family to support them through the courts or through the strongest kind of moral obligation. The mere fact that one contributes the support of his family does not necessarily make him the head of the family.

If a return is not filed on or before March 1 and no extension has been granted in an exceptional case, the taxpayer is liable to a penalty of 50 per cent. of the amount of the tax and a fine of an amount not exceeding $1,000; if it be a fraudulent return, a $2,000 fine or imprisonment for not over a year, or both.

Soldier Sends Coat to Priest.

Father Will W. Whalen, of Buchanan Valley, recently received a box at Biglerville, which kept him guessing. Then a note found in a pocket of the very large, heavy coat, which the box contained, gave him a clue. When Father Whalen was in New York about a year ago, he met an Irish soldier who was preparing to go to France via Canada. Priests and soldiers are always friends; there's a likeness betwixt 'em, it seems. Father W. and the "Tommy" spent the day together, and when they were parting—perhaps never to meet again—the soldier said: "I'd like to give you something for being so good to me." One pair of Irish eyes sparkled back at the other, with many moisture on their lashes. "Give me—your hide after your country—our country has no further use for it," said the priest. "And I'll sing a mass over you when my voice isn't cracked with tears." Then the priest, like Moses, went up to the South Mountain to pray, while Joshua went down among the fighters in the trenches. Now the box! A brief line read: "Soggarth aroon (Priest dear): You asked for me hide. I'm after telling my brother to send you my bearskin. That's what my coat is made of. 'Twill keep warm the cockles of your heart. If a German bullet hits the right spot, I guess I'll go where 'twill be warm enough without coats. Sing the mass, and I'll listen for the echo over here in the cold,—or down there in the heat."

The "Poilu" in the Hospital.

What sort of man the "poilu" is as he lies defenseless in his bed, I may as well admit at once, after several months of intimacy with him, that he has not only conquered my affection, which any poor stricken lad might do, but has inspired in me a profound respect. I will not say that I have been surprised to find him brave and cheerful, for his patience in suffering has been not less than I expected. But perhaps no one who has never helped to nurse wounded soldiers could have anticipated that men from the humblest walks of life, the rank and file of farm laborers, factory hands, cab-drivers, butchers, boys, and the miscellaneous herd of city clerks, would, with scarcely an exception, have proved so refined, so gentle, so responsive to any overture of courtesy and any demand of generosity. France has always been a great civilization. She has given manners to the world. Her people embraced Christianity when "our fathers worshipped stocks and stones." She was foremost among the nations to be inspired with the divine folly of chivalry. She, with America in her hand, was the first to turn at the mile-post of democracy and begin the arduous race for equal rights and mutual sacrifice in human society. After all, then, that her sons, the poorest and most ignorant of them, should be rich in grace and wise in conduct is not surprising. One little trait is significant. When gentlemen are hungry they show their breeding by restraint and consideration for others, and it is a fact worth noting that in our wards where meals are set upon the table the men eat with a decent regard for all and with singular self-respect. They divide the food among themselves justly, giving, indeed, an extra portion to the weakest; they hold their knives and forks properly; they eat with wit and humor and make of it a pleasant diversion.

Buy Big Tractor.

M. S. Burgard, of East Berlin, proprietor of several large farms, has received a new on-horse power tractor. It is equipped with three 14-inch plows and can be propelled by kerosene or gasoline. The tractor can also be attached to the mower, binder, or thresher, and will be a very useful machine in this age of solving the problem of labor shortage.

Uncle Sam Takes Over Railroads.

President Wilson's announcement that he will assume possession and operation of every railroad in the United States became effective at noon Friday, Dec. 28, as follows:

"I have exercised the powers over the transportation systems of the country which were granted me by the act of congress of August, 1916, because it has become imperatively necessary for me to do so.

"This is a war of resources no less than of men, perhaps even more, than of men, and it is necessary for the complete mobilization of our resources that the transportation systems of the country should be organized and employed under a single authority and a simplified method of coordination, which have not proved possible under private management and control.

"The committee of railway executives who have been co-operating with the government in this all-important matter have done the utmost that it was possible for them to do; but it was possible for them to do more done with patriotic zeal and with great ability; but there were difficulties that they could neither overcome nor centralize.

"In the vicinity of Admited tra in the present circumstances involves a the dislocation of earnings, and the committee was, of course, without power or authority to rearrange or effect proper compensation and adjustments of earnings.

"The public interest must be first served and, in addition, the financial interests of the government and the financial interests of the railways must be brought under a common direction.

"The financial operations of the railways need not then interfere with the borrowings of the government and they themselves can be conducted at a greater advantage.

"Investors in railway securities may rest assured that their rights and interests will be as scrupulously look ed after by the government as they could be by the directors of the sev eral railways' systems.

"Immediately upon the reassembling of congress I shall recommend that these definite guarantees be given: First, of course, that the railway properties will be maintained during the period of federal control in as good repair and as complete equipment as when taken over by the government, and second, that the roads shall receive a net operating income equal in each case to the average net income of the three years preceding June 30, 1917; and I am entirely confident that the congress will be disposed in this case, as in others, to see that justice is done and full security assured to the owners and creditors of the great systems which the government must now use under its own direction or else suffer serious embarrassment.

"The Secretary of War and I are agreed that all the circumstances being taken into consideration, the best results can be obtained under the immediate executive direction of William G. McAdoo, whose practical experience peculiarly fits him for the service and whose authority as Secretary of the Treasury will enable him to co-ordinate as no other man could the many financial interests which will be involved and which might, unless systematically directed, suffer very embarrassing entanglements.

"The government of the United States is the only great government now engaged in the war which has not already assumed control of this sort. It was thought to be in the spirit of American institutions to attempt to do everything that was necessary through private management, and if zeal and ability and patriotic motive could have accomplished the necessary unification of administration it would certainly have been accomplished, but no zeal or ability could overcome insuperable obstacles, and I have deemed it my duty to recognize that fact in all candor now that it is demonstrated, and to use without reserve the great authority reposed in me. A great national necessity dictated the action and I was therefore not at liberty to abstain from it.

"WOODROW WILSON."

NEWLYWEDS DINE ON STEW

Wifey Prepares Dailey Morsel With Own Little Hands — But Physician Must Be Called for Hubby.

The cook had insisted on a day off, and young Mrs. Freshly-Wedd was in a quandary and her stunning new house gown of twisted percale, muses the Detroit Free Press.

"I'll make a stew—anybody can make a stew!" she cried.

And she proceeded to make a stew. In the icebox she found seven frankfurters, a dozen fried oysters and three pickled herring.

"How fortunate—meat is the very importantest thing!" she exclaimed. And she chopped it all up and added three cupfuls of salt and two of pepper so as to be sure not to forget the seasoning. Then—because she knew that a stew must have lots of variety—she put in a glass of olive oil, two tablespoons of grated nutmeg, two packages of Saratoga chips, a can of salmon and a half cake of bitter chocolate.

At 6:30 Freshly-Wedd came home—her Ben, stalwart and handsome, who had never known an hour's illness in his life.

"Phew!" he exclaimed. "What's that smell?"

"It's a stew I made for you wiv my own little hands," she told him.

"Divine aroma!" cried Freshly-Wedd, and forthwith sat down and ate two big platefuls, while his wife watched him so eagerly that she forgot to eat any herself.

Three hours later, in response to a hasty call, Doctor Blister drove up and rang the front doorbell. Query: Who was the patient, and why?

WIFEY GOT DUMKOPFF'S ROLL

Spouse Induced Him to Curtail Expenses at Celebration, Then Divided Money "Equally."

Adolph Dumkopff had made a killing at poker, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Oh, Adolph, how lovely!" scurried his wife. "You must have had wonderful hands, Adolph. What did you have—Jacks down, or a full hand, or something?"

"How about a little celebration?" said Mr. Dumkopff, jovially. "How about a little theater party, and then a little something to eat at Snoozemacher's?"

"Now, Adolph," remonstrated Mrs. Dumkopff, "what's the good of squandering it right away? Now that you've got it, you may as well keep it for a rainy day. We'll celebrate reasonably, that's what we'll do."

And after supper they went to the movies to see the beautiful Snoozes Wonderful in "Looping the Loop" in five parts, after which they each had a pickle sandwich in Childish's.

"Now, wasn't that a reasonable celebration?" said Mrs. Dumkopff, when they had returned home. "Only eighty-five cents altogether."

"Cheap at half the price," agreed her husband, as he dropped off to sleep. Half an hour later Mrs. Dumkopff carefully removed his trousers from the chair by his head, extracted his roll from the right-hand pocket, divided it with scrupulous fairness into two equal parts, kept the six tens and replaced the six fives in her husband's trousers.

"I'll buy something for the house with this, such as the prizes for my card party next week," thought Mrs. Dumkopff, as she tucked the bills into her back hair and slipped into bed to sleep the sleep of the foxy.

SHOULD SALUTE THE FLAG

Virginian Who Has Lived Abroad Urges Reverence for the Emblem of the Country.

"Why does the average American not salute the flag?" asked R. O. Outcault, a Virginian who has lived abroad for the last ten years, according to the Washington Post.

"On the day of the draft parade in Washington the only man I saw saluting the regimental colors was a policeman, probably an old soldier who has learned the love and reverence which every man who has served feels for the flag. When I and the friend with me—a Britisher—bared our heads every time the flag of a regiment went past a few persons in the crowd began, somewhat shamefacedly, to follow our example.

"Attempts to fix the date of the advent, the second coming, the dawn of the millennium, have been proved by lapse of time to have been failures. Some of the dates that have been fixed for the beginning of the millennium have been 1785, by a man named Stillring; 1836, by Bengal; 1848, by Miller; 1866, 1867 and 1868, by Doctor Cunningham; and 1900, by the Mormon church.

PLIGHT OF TROUSERLESS MAN

Wind Blowing Door Shut Leaves Him in Predicament, Causing Hasty Retreat to Garage in Rear.

A certain North side man, the Indianapolis News had a patriotic garden and it was his habit to get up with the sun, don khaki trousers, drink a cupful of coffee and work until his wife called him to breakfast, about two hours later.

He rose about five o'clock one morning and dressed completely—all but the khaki trousers, which he kept in the basement. He descended the stairs and was on the way to the basement, when he saw outside a bottle of cream left by the milkman. Thinking of the effect of sunlight on cream and of his cupful of coffee, he peered up and down the street, opened the door, stepped out and grabbed the bottle hurriedly. Just as he turned to go he heard a slam—the wind had blown the door shut.

He found himself out on the front porch, fully dressed, with the exception of a pair of trousers. The door was locked. He looked wildly up and down the street, vaulted the low cement railing and made a bee-line for the garage, the only available place of refuge and seclusion. He remained in the garage until his wife learned of his predicament, about two hours later, and came to his rescue.

The story would have remained a dark secret had not a neighbor—a woman, too—seen the whole affair and witnessed, the mad scramble for the garage.

"MEAT!" CRY BELGIAN WAIFS

Hungry Children March Through Streets Shouting for Food—Fed by the Red Cross.

The desperate condition of the civilian population of Belgium and northern France, who are being repatriated, and the work of the Red Cross in restoring them to normal health is graphically described in a report to Red Cross headquarters from Evain, where repatriates are received. These destitute people are returning to their land at the rate of 1,000 a week, 80 per cent of them children. Their hardships have been so acute that of the adults who return 30 per cent die the first month from exhaustion.

"There arrived recently," says the report, "a train loaded with Belgian children, 680 of them, thin, sickly, alone, all between ages of four and twelve, children of men who refused to work for the Germans and of mothers who let their children go rather than let them starve. They poured off the train.

"They had come all the long way alone. The children poured out the station, marched along the street, shouting, 'Meat, meat, we are going to have meat!' to the Casino, where they were given a square meal, the first in many months."

Usual Conversation.

The first exclamation from a woman shopper when she sees anything that attracts her attention is, "Oh, aren't they sweet!" And as she stops to paw whatever it is, she inquires the price. If it suits her pocketbook the next question is, "Do you guarantee them?" Recently a fastidious young thing flattered her way down the lingerie aisle of a New York emporium and halted before a counter wherein was heaped what the advertisement writers term robes du nuit, but which fastidious persons call "nighties." The young woman gurgled with delight. After satisfying herself that they were all right she inquired the price. Then she hesitated for a moment and out came the old stereotyped question: "Do you guarantee them?" "Certainly, ma'am," replied the clerk glibly, "you can't wear them out."

About Cleanliness.

How much there is in health and training! It is considered the birth of ill-breding to take up food with the fingers, and yet there are nations which eat with their fingers, and which frown the practice on the ground of cleanliness.

"Excuse me," said a Malay gentleman to his American guest, "but I don't see how you can eat with a fork."

"I beg your pardon," said the guest, "but I was about to make the same remark about your fingers."

"My fingers," replied the Malay, "are certainly clean, because I see to them myself; but how can you be sure of a fork?"

"THE HOUSE OF MIRTH"

A Noble Sacrifice

By Eva Warington

Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.

Verne Purcell had a double experience in a single day that marked the turning point in his whole life: he met Alton Marsh, dreamer and inventor, whose personality, once cultivated, it was difficult to forget; he met also the loveliest young lady he had ever seen—Janice Marsh.

It was because young Purcell was a mechanical engineer something of an inventor himself and a member of a gay technical club that he became acquainted with the old man. The latter invited him to his home, a quaint bumble cottage, but surrounded by a garden that comprised a veritable floral paradise.

In the midst of it, suggesting a fairy queen of roses, and perfumes, and sweetness, stood the lovely Janice framed in a background of bewildering color. Purcell for a moment stood riveted, as one in a trance. Then he was conscious that his host had proceeded some distance in advance and rejoined him.

"And he cannot find it?" suggested Verne.

"He insists he dreams it, but then when he works he cannot reproduce it. He keeps the blueprint on the workshop table all the time, hoping the missing link will come to his mind. Oh, I hope he will not fail to complete the machine!"

"He shall complete it!" ardently breathed Verne to himself, and he was so attentive and sympathetic all that evening that when he left and Janice returned to her room, she sat at its open window in the dark, thinking of him, and fell into slumber unaware.

Janice awoke with a start as she noticed a light in the workshop. Straining her gaze, she recognized someone bending over the work table where the blueprint lay. She gave a great gasp. It was Verne Purcell.

The light was extinguished and Verne stole across the garden and disappeared. The heart of Janice sank. Why this clandestine and mysterious visit? Was Verne Purcell not what he seemed? Was he bent on stealing his father's invention? The first impulse of Janice was to arouse her father and tell him of the incident. Then her faith in Verne overcame her suspicions.

She was preparing breakfast the next morning when her father came rushing into the room in a frantic state of excitement.

"Eureka!" he shouted. "Oh, Janice, my child! I have succeeded. I have been half mad with despair and discouragement. Now I am lifted to the very heights. I have found the connecting link—think of it—on the blueprint! I must have drawn it when half dazed, the echo of my dream!"

He and his model left the house an hour later. Janice visited the workshop. A deep thoughtfulness settled down over her as she examined the blueprint and picked up a pencil from the floor.

She received a brief note from Verne that afternoon. "Please tell Mr. Marsh that I am called away from the city for a day or two," it ran, and the day following there came a telegram to Janice from her father: "Model accepted. Money paid and royalties during life of patent."

The heart of Janice fluttered strangely as Verne Purcell put in an appearance two evenings later. She handed him the telegram she had received from her father.

"Grand! Glorious!" exuberated Verne, and slightly started. "What is this?" he inquired.

"The pencil you dropped in my father's workshop the night you placed on the blueprint the connecting suggestion of the machine. Why this great sacrifice?"

"You ask!" said Verne, with emotion, "when it means the lifelong happiness of your dear father? Miss Marsh—Janice, you share my secret—he must never know. It would crush his pride, his ambition. His was the invention first. It is just that I should step aside."

"It is noble!" cried Janice, with shining eyes. "Oh, my friend!"

She placed her trembling hands within his own, and Verne Purcell knew that there was a reward in store for him, her undying love, for the asking.

Thought "Lieutenant" First Name.

When General Sibert, now in France with General Pershing, was graduated from West Point as a second Lieutenant many years ago, he went back to his boyhood home in Kentucky and for a vacation took a hunting trip with an old fellow known as one of the best hunters in the state. Years passed and Lieutenant Sibert was promoted through intermediate ranks until he reached the grade of major general. Again he went to his boyhood home and hunted up his old friend who had hunted with him years before.

The two had a fine time, but General Sibert noticed that the hunter persisted in calling him "Lieutenant."

It finally got on the general's nerves, and he blurted out: "Say, I like you a whole lot, but why do you keep on calling me 'Lieutenant'?"

The old fellow was abashed, but he didn't lose his nerve.

"Why, isn't that your first name?" he said.

Verne leaned heavily on the workbench when the inventor had gone. He viewed the model with gloomy eyes. The glance was not unfriendly, rather disappointed, though intense. The truth was that he had been working along the same line for the past two years. He had to admit to himself that Marsh had precedence as to the original idea and that he had worked out the mechanical problem far in advance of his own conception. Yet it was hard to surrender one of his own fond dreams of success.

"He lacks the one element I have got," mumbled Verne. Then he added in a more gentle tone: "It would break his heart to fail."

He forgot the battle of his emotions when he was introduced to the inventor's daughter. The table had been

WOMEN AS GREAT ORGANIZERS

Matrons Conduct Large National Gatherings With a Zest and Order, and Not a Man is to Be Seen.

In the last 20 or 25 years particularly the women of this country have become past masters in developing nation-wide organizations. The groups which they have formed sometimes number as many as a million women. They take great delight in the perfection of their machinery. Much of the social awakening among women, the desire to improve their surroundings, comes from the stimulus and the education they get from their organizations.

But these organizations, it should be noted, are voluntary, writes Ida M. Tarbell in Harper's Magazine. They are directed to some purpose which appeals particularly to the group.

Each stands on its own feet—that is, they are not co-operative organizations; and again, they have nothing to do with men. Go to one of their national gatherings. You will see meetings conducted with a zest, an order, a directness which throws in the shade almost any men's convention I ever saw, and not a man to be seen anywhere.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.
